1	I think Dr. Will really knows what he's doing, since the class is meticulously structured, and he always gives really good feedback, for example, helping me hold back my own quirks and using one for the character.
2	I loved that Dr. Will was honest with his students, I think that helped a lot of students open up. He was very transparent, never judged, and made the stage feel like home or a sense of comfortability.
3	I like how he gave students a chance to rehearse scenes, monologues, etc. in front of him before the final performance. Receiving notes and being forced to practice helped actors improve overall.
4	Dr. Will made class fun and educational. He always made sure his students were comfortable in class.
5	Dr. Will is one of my favorite teachers at Purdue after taking his class. I learned a ton that I will use for the rest of my life.

1	If an acting exercise is not working for an individual, I think a new method should be introduced. This way the person does not feel awkward and their performance will ultimately be enhanced by a method that is best for them.
2	I was listening to people talking about possibly rearranging the assignments a bit, but I'm not totally sure.
3	I think that it'd be really cool to have partners for the monologue, in the sense that you can help another student out during rehearsal time or give consistent feedback. It's nice to have someone to be accountable with.

1	I enjoyed this professor and this course even though it was difficult at times. Dr. Lewis was always willing to help his students, and I felt valued in his class. I appreciate how the the professor incorporated the class in discussion, and he always wanted everyone to at least participate a little. He made the course content enjoyable which helped me stay involved in the class.
2	Dr. Will totally supported each of us to give all of ourselves, with a very positive attitude. He motivated us during the whole semester to try our best, and he was always willing to help us improve.
3	Dr. Will is good at making a positive and comfortable environment for students which can really make a world of difference when dealing with acting, especially for newer students
4	Dr. Will has been one of the most genuine and open professors at Purdue. He truly tries to understand his students and help them grow and get better at what they're doing.

1	While for the majority of the class, the professor was extremely open-minded and considerate, I did find that there were instances in my experience where the professor didn't really take into consideration difficulties I or other student might have. This more so occurred with things like criticizing me for smaller body movements that act as tics through assorted issues like ADHD and anxiety, usually resigning them to "isms" and regarding them as something that I should be able to control without issue in a scene. I would in future semesters keep in consideration that students may struggle with these issues and ask that the professor try to be more understanding and patient with these students.
2	I do not think there is any problem in the class, but maybe it would be interesting to try to give more acting activities and reduce the workshops in class.
3	I appreciated how the professor was willing to allow other students to jump into the conversation at times. For example, when Dr. Lewis was speaking with a student and teaching that student, he would allow other students to jump in and teach along with them. At times, there were students who jumped into or interrupted the teaching between Dr. Lewis and the other student. This was distracting and annoying when it happened too often. I would recommend allowing this to happen, but limit it when some students have spoken frequently. Other than that there are no topics which I think should be improved.
4	A bit more explanation or resources available to discuss the more technical terms of acting rather than just the textbook or spoken lessons in class.
